See also the Reaves publication: North Carolina Freedman's Savings and Trust Company Records. Raleigh, NC: North Carolina Genealogical Society, 1992. Call # 929.3756 N. Bill Reaves, abstractor and Beverly Tetterton, editor. The Freedman's Savings and Trust Company, or the Freedman's Bank as it is universally called, was chartered on March 3, 1865, as an outgrowth of military saving banks which had been established elsewhere for Black Union troops who needed a place to deposit their wages and bounty money. Congress was persuaded to establish a bank so former slaves could learn the value of thrift and savings. In North Carolina, there were three branches of the Freedman's Bank. These were located in New Bern, Raleigh and Wilmington. Over 8,600 records of individual surnames survive. The majority are freedmen and their family members, but occasionally there are white depositors and church and social club deposits.

Plantations - BOXED file -Place names include various descriptions (plantation, place, tract, farm, lands, property, hall, etc.) for properties, often used interchangeably. Place names based on surnames may have an apostrophe or not – indexed here without. A single folder may contain records for more than one property with the same or similar identifying names. Many locations are now within City of Wilmington. Records in these folders reference various sources in addition to news clippings. Most pages in these files are typed pages, typed by WMR 1977-78. See also the Family files for surnames of interest.

Listings which are preceded by a “-” are single page files, and are in the folder in the front of the boxed file.
